Home Again.

Dr. E. T. WASGATT,
(From the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery.)
Having had the rooms formerly occupied by him at 2 1-2 Kenduskeag Bridge,
But which was burned out in the recent fire, refitted, remodeled, and fitted up in the best manner, with all the modern instruments and appliances for the performance of all kinds of operations in Dentistry, begs leave to inform his old friends and patrons, and the public generally, that he is at home again in the same old spot, where he would be happy to see them and wait upon them with anything wanted in the Dentistry line.
He would call special attention to his new apparatus for generating Nitrous Oxide Gas, Sprague's Pastile—the only generator that makes a pure and painless gas, and the only one of the kind ever in this city.
He continues also his specialty of administering ether spray, which is first taking the place of the old method of inhalation, being entirely safe to the most delicate persons.
Please give him a call at his new rooms.

—BY THE—
Mutual Store Company,
No. 23 & 24 Central Street,
Large invoices of fresh and very elegant flavored New Teas, imported by the most direct route, and selected by our American agent of the highest integrity and undoubted skill, sent out to China expressly to guard against, and if possible, protect the American consumer of this delicious plant from the porcelain and consummate frauds practiced by the Chinamen, in curing and packing Teas for the American Market. Our Roasted Coffee is all prepared by an American House of long standing, and whose reputation for honesty and thorough old integrity, is above all reproach, or suspicion, and are not allowed to pass through the hands of the Chinamen, where they would be sure to receive the villainous adulteration. Sure to suit. Try them. Our are already well known in this community, and are well appreciated. N. O.

We have also a very large and carefully selected Stocks of all kinds of goods entering into the stock of first class Grocery Store, and a customer at our Store can buy nicely Teas, Coffee, Spices, Sugar, rice, and a few such articles, but also, Molasses of all grades, Syrups, Pork and Lard, Kerosene Oil, Flour, Meal, Butter, Eggs, and all kinds of country produce, everything in the Wooden Ware line, from a ten cent Basket to a Clothes-horse, also, English Ale, English Pickles, English Mustards, English Sauce for your Pickles, Sardines, Lobsters and Oysters in cans. The passion with which the French soldier respects the flag, is vividly revealed in a story of Sedan. At the moment of capitulation, a captain, a lieutenant of Zouaves, and a brave sergeant, resolved that the flag which had been left in their keeping should not fall into the hands of the Prussians. So they took the emblem of France to pieces, one concealing the bâtonet under his uniform, the other putting the balls into his pocket and the third keeping the eagle. After the capitulation, it was agreed that the relics should be confided to the care of the sergeant, who, being an Alsacian, could speak German. The brave sergeant then managed to escape from his captors, to den the gulse of a peasant, and to obtain a basket, in which he placed the "memorials" of French glory. He then covered the precious relics with a mass of tobacco, which he had got from the willing peasants, and, thus guarded against detection he managed to pass through the German lines and to reach Paris.

☞ CHOLERA.—It generally takes the old Asiatic cholera two years to make its way round the world from its starting point in India.—Last spring it was raging there fearfully. It has since travelled across the border and through Persia into southern Russia, finding its way to St. Petersburg, where it is beginning to do an unwelcome work. It will next sweep the continent, and follow the tracks of ocean vessels to America, arriving here possibly by another summer or autumn. Such has been its course in the past.—Ex.

A DREADFUL ACCIDENT occurred at Mitchell's ship-yard, near Newcastle on the Tyne, Friday afternoon. A large iron vessel in course of construction suddenly fell over, crushing several of the workmen. Six bodies had been recovered and six others were alive but could not be at once released. Besides the killed, at least thirty were seriously injured.

The two detectives sent to Europe by Superintendent Jourdan of New York, soon after the Nathan murder, returned on the steamer, Wisconsin on Thursday, and it is rumored that they brought back some person as a prisoner or witness.

Whig & Courier.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

MONDAY, OCT. 17, 1870.

PAYING THE PUBLIC DEBT.

In an editorial on the payment of the Public Debt the Eastern Argus has the following:

"And because Democrats will not approve this policy to make the rich richer and the poor poorer, as Commissioner Wells himself a Republican, so clearly proved to be the case, the radical journals take every opportunity to misrepresent their position and impugn their motives. The Bangor Whig and Courier, for example, referring to the debt statement and the Democrats says:

"The reduction of the debt by over nine millions during September, is one of those facts which they (the Democrats) cannot figure out of sight."

As though Democrats would not be gratified at reduced indebtedness for themselves and their neighbors, and as though, because they do not believe in the exhaustive policy of their opponents, they are therefore to be gibed as opposing the payment of the national debt. Only narrow minds or those blinded by partisan prejudices, could be guilty of such meanness."

We would like to ask the Argus, which of the characteristics enumerated in the last paragraph of the above prompted it to publish the following serious imputation, which provoked our remark and which we printed with it:

"The fall elections have a powerful influence on the public debt statement."

We do not say that the Argus intended to "misrepresent" or "impugn the motives" of any person or persons, though a damaging inference might be drawn from such an assertion, by a reader unacquainted with the peculiarities of that paper; but its criticism of our remark without mentioning that which caused it, is slightly suggestive of the quality last named in the extract which we quote from its leader.

If the Democrats are gratified at the reduction of our indebtedness, we certainly are gratified to learn that such is their feeling, and it is especially gratifying to feel that our Republican administration has been able to contribute to their satisfaction, by the large and constant reductions which have been accomplished, including over nine millions for the month of September. The Argus, however, while exceedingly anxious that our debt should be reduced, is violently opposed to taxation and produces tabulated statistics to show, that in order to clear off our indebtedness at the rate of over one hundred millions per year, the people have actually been compelled to pay more taxes than they did before the war or while we were borrowing the money which is now being paid.

The fact is neighbor Argus,—and disagreeable though it be, it is none the less a fact—that we owe a large sum of money; that having borrowed it and expended it we have now to face the more troublesome task of paying it. We admit that borrowing is very bad policy as a rule, that large expenditures should be avoided if possible; but there were peculiar circumstances attending the incurring of this debt which can be urged in its justification, and there is a question of responsibility for the expenditure of life and treasure which cannot be wholly overlooked. But, as there is some little "unpleasantness" connected with that portion of the history of this debt, we are willing to leave it untouched unless compelled to refer to it, and joining the Argus on the simple fact that we are owing money, set it to give a cordial support to a policy which has so gratified the Democracy by its constant reduction of the debt, and which promises them so much similar gratification in the future.

The Argus has, no doubt, a financial theory of its own, which it firmly believes would wipe the troublesome figures from the Treasury slate with the facility of a schoolboy's sponge. It is the constitutional duty of every newspaper editor to have such a theory, and it is, perhaps, owing to the innumerable stupidity of the public that the excellence of that of the Argus has not been instantly recognized and its gifted author borne to the capital in a triumphal chariot over the prostrate forms of the bloated bondholders of the nation. We must bow to the inevitable, however, and the people of this country seem stubbornly convinced that debts cannot be paid without some one furnishes the means. To be sure, there has been a suggestion that the easier plan would be not to pay at all, but old fogy notions of honesty were not satisfied by that method, and even those who advocated it have so modified their views, that they now only demand that taxation shall be abolished.

In the meantime, a policy has been adopted by which gratifying reductions have been made in the amount of our outstanding liabilities, while the financial credit of the nation has,—in spite of what the Argus knows to be a ruinous course—advanced in every market in the world and its depreciated currency is steadily rising towards the specie standard. In its anxiety for the public prosperity, the Argus forgets to give due prominence to these facts, and in recapitulating the unpleasant details connected with the frequent calls of the tax gatherer, it studiously omits to inform its readers that some ten thousand articles have been placed beyond his reach, and that the amount of his collections has been reduced in the past five years, to the extent of some two hundred and fifty millions per annum. We think these facts would be gratifying to those who are pleased at the lessening of our debt and also desirous of being relieved of some of the burdens of taxation, and we hope the Argus will promptly give the pleasant intelligence a place in its columns.

The Argus may believe that a Democratic administration would give all these excellent results without imposing any of the burdens; but the Democrats are not in power at present and there is no indication that they will soon obtain it, so that under the circumstances perhaps it would be judicious for that paper to postpone its plan, while we will keep our own original financial panacea in abeyance, and by sustaining a system which is certainly working very well, considering that neither of us had a hand in its construction, we may accomplish in the end,—what is a barely possible that our combined algebra might fail to secure,—the extinction of that vexatious monetary souvenir of the Rebellion.

The returns from the October elections are still incomplete, but enough is already known to show that the sweeping gains so confidently predicted by the Democrats have again failed them, and their hope of controlling the next Congress has vanished into thin air. As near as we can judge from the telegraphic reports which have been received, the delegation from Pennsylvania will preserve the political proportions of last year, while the election of a Republican in the place of Judge Woodward deprives the Democrats of one of their strongest men. In Ohio, the Democrats appear to have gained one member, but have lost Cary from Cincinnati, one of their special favorites. The Indiana delegation shows a gain of one for the Democrats while Iowa returns a full list of Republicans and Nebraska elects a Republican Delegate to Congress and a Legislature which will return a Republican U. S. Senator to succeed Mr. Hayer.

There are two or three districts in which the Republican majorities are not positively ascertained; but conceding all the undecided districts, the boasted Democratic gains will have dwindled to four or five at most, in a campaign which has been marked by unusual apathy and division on the part of the Republicans. We can spare several from the forty-four members which we claim out of the six States elected in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska and still return a majority of controlling proportions, and which it will take our opponents a great many years to overcome at the present rate of progress. Ohio has probably doubled the majority of the State ticket last year, and that of Iowa is increased to a round forty thousand. Indiana, which was very close at the last State election, being carried by the Republicans by 901, has gone Democratic by a small majority, and this is the largest crumb of comfort which has been vouchsafed to the enemy.

The general result has been highly satisfactory to the Republicans and foreshadows the coming victories of November, while the dampening effect of the returns upon the hitherto sanguine Democracy, is evidenced by the remarks of the Boston Post, which endeavors to cheer its friends by stating that "they see that the Democracy, hold their ground nobly, where they have made no numerical gains."

Rumors of Cabinet changes were rife on Saturday. Washington specials announced that as the Indiana Legislature is reported to have a Democratic majority which would elect a Democratic Senator to succeed Mr. Morton in case of his resignation, that gentleman would probably decline the English mission and Secretary Cox would be appointed in his place, while Commissioner Delano would succeed Mr. Cox, and Senator Williams of Oregon take the place of Mr. Akerman as Attorney General.

These surmises lack confirmation, with the exception of the case of Secretary J. D. Cox of the Interior Department, whose resignation has been tendered and, according to the N. Y. Evening Post accepted by the President. The Post makes the retirement of Mr. Cox the text of a bitter attack upon the President, whom it accuses of having used the patronage of his office for partizan purposes as freely as Buchanan or Pierce. As the Democratic press will seize upon this charge and parade it as an indictment preferred by a Republican journal, we quote the following comments upon the Pennsylvania election which were published in its columns, where utterly all political principle is sacrificed upon the altars of its idol of Free Trade, which it worships in season and out of season, at all times and under all circumstances, with an utter disregard of everything else, that is calculated to alienate many who would otherwise incline to its views:

"The latest reports from Pennsylvania indicate a Republican loss of four or five members of Congress. Daniel J. Morrell is defeated, and possibly John Cessna—which will be welcome news to the people. Altogether, Tuesday was a pretty good day for revenue reformers.".

The Republicanism of a paper which expresses such sentiments as the above, must certainly be regarded as of an exceedingly mild type, and the Post will find more promise of success in fighting the "monopolists" than in attacking a President who has won the confidence and respect of the whole country, and that largely by his efficient management of the civil service, which it charges him with having subordinated to political ends.

Between the desire to keep the naturalization machine in full operation, and the necessity of abusing the "Heathen Chinee," the Democrats make queer work in constructing a political platform, as will be seen by reading the following extract from that adopted by the recent Democratic State Convention of Massachusetts:

"The 5th resolution recites "that it is our proud boast that the oppressed of all nations can find with us a safe asylum, and here enjoy the blessings of a free government; that consistency with our professions, not less than the highest welfare of both native and foreign born, require that all who come to these shores should as soon as practicable become citizens and have their equal influence in political affairs;" which is a little severe on the party which fought so hard for slavery and against the principle of universal suffrage;—and the following resolution declares that "independent of the question as to the expediency of bringing into intimate political and social relations two adverse races of men, we believe it to be wrong to stimulate by artificial means the irruption into our community of swarms of Mongolians, who have neither the wish nor the aptitude to assume the duties and responsibilities of citizenship," which is to say the least, rather a curious companion for resolution number five.

WAR NOTES.

The Prussian government has ordered an appraisement of the the damage done to private property in Strasbourg, evidently with the intention of putting the amount in the bill of indemnity against France; and Stettin has been ordered to furnish a minute of the war contributions levied by the French early in this century, probably for the same purpose.

The story that the Prussian government proposes the restoration of Nice and Savoy to Italy is authoritatively denied.—Each Captor of France is required to furnish a battalion of soldiers for the national defence. The total number of Cantons is about 2,850.—A special to the N. Y. Sun says that French deserters from Metz (not very reliable authority) report that there is neither bread nor salt in the city. Bazaine has impressed in the ranks all able bodied civilians. The garrison, including these, numbers 10,000 men under arms. The service is very hard, the troops sleeping on their arms. Dissatisfaction is great, and mutiny is seemingly impending. On the 7th instant a portion of the troops refused to make a sortie, and it is difficult to force them to outdoor duty. Even the guards show symptoms of disobedience.—Minister Gambetta has issued the following proclamation: "Inhabitants of Tours—I announce to you with inexpressible satisfaction that on the 12th inst. the more than heroic people of France, growing impatient behind their ramparts at Paris, determined to march forward against the enemy. Here is the bulletin of the first victory:—On the entire zone around the city the Prussians have been driven out of all the positions which they have been occupying for three weeks. Towards St. Denis, they have been driven away beyond Stains, Pierre Fitte and Dugny, on the east side, Joinville, Creteil, Bonneuil, and the Plateau of Avons have been reoccupied. They have been forced from Lebas, Meudon, and St. Cloud, and thrown back on Versailles. The enemy know now what a people will do who are determined to save their institutions and honor. I invite the Provinces to do their duty as Paris has done hers.—Vive Paris, Vive la France, Vive la Republique."

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The election is to continue three days in Georgia the 20th, 21st and 22d of December. The Democrats in the 6th Missouri District have nominated A. Cummings for Congress. The President has nominated Jacob Parmento Collector of Customs at Champlain, N. Y., and H. Akeley for the district of Michigan. The Grand Lodge of Masons of San Francisco has re-elected Leonidas Pratt, Grand Master, and Alexander G. Abell, Grand Secretary. Judge John T. Harris of Richmond County, was nominated for Congress by the Conservatives of the 6th District of Virginia, on Friday. The Republicans of the 1st Massachusetts District have renominated Mr. Burlington for Congress. The Journal says he will be elected by a handsome majority.

The Archbishop of Quebec died on Tuesday night of dropsy of the heart, aged 78 years. He was the fifteenth Bishop and the third Archbishop of Quebec.

The Republicans of the 6th Massachusetts District have nominated Hon. W. B. Washburne of Greenfield, for Congress, and the Democrats of the 10th District have nominated Llewelen Noble of Westfield.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

Rumors of Prussian Surrender at Orleans.

A BATTLE NEAR CHATILLON

BELLIGERENCY IN HOLLAND.

THE SITUATION AROUND PARIS.

More Negotiations for Peace.

THE CONDITION OF PARIS

London, Oct. 15. By a balloon that left Paris on the 10 by dispatches have been received at the city is amply supplied with provisions. There is enough on hand to last three months. An official decree has been published postponing the payment of rent three months. The Odeon has been converted into a powder magazine and the Grand Opera House is full of arms. The fire from Fort Mont Valerien makes dreadful havoc among the Prussians, continually breaking their lines.

A FRENCH IN HOLLAND

A special dispatch from Hague says that great excitement prevails upon the discovery that the King was about to declare war with Prussia. There was a row in the King's Cabinet. The King was told that he must not raise the standard. The Crown Prince warned the members that if they did not take sides now, he should regret their inactivity.—The Cabinet appealed to the people and petitions from all parts in favor of giving the States General, and not the King, the right to declare war, called down the politic cool feeling of the King.

PROVISIONS IN METZ.

London, Oct. 15. A despatch from Metz reports that bread and salt are entirely exhausted, though there is an apparent plenty of other provisions.

THE TRAINS OF CARS

carrying Prussians to the camp before Paris have cross-ed the Moselle recently.

The Prussian reserves on the Rhine are to move northward from the vicinity of Breslau and Schlestadt.

SIEGE OF SOISSONS AND VERDUN.

London, Oct. 15. The formal siege of Soissons and Verdun has commenced. The fact is clearly developed that both fortifications are well supplied with artillery and experienced gunners.

AROUND PARIS.

The Prussian earthworks before Fort Du Mont Valerien are irksome to the French garrison, whose fire is incessant. The sorties of the French at Paris are all successfully repulsed. A siege train of heavy guns have just arrived before Paris from Germany.

THE PRUSSIANS MOVING SOUTH.

Tours, Oct. 15. A Paris letter of the 11th says that the Prussians in force are moving southerly. The Mobiles are following to watch their movements.

GEN. BURNSIDE.

Returned to the Prussian headquarters yesterday and is expected in Paris again to-morrow.

It is said that negotiations looking to peace are going on actively, though the people of Paris seem determined to oppose any peace based upon any cession of French territory or in any way humiliating.

London, Oct. 15. An early meeting of the

has been decided upon to make the necessary provisions for carrying on the war. The amount of money to be appropriated has been reduced from one hundred to eighty millions of thalers.

An official announcement of the reopening to the port of Kiel is published to-day. Mariners are warned against torpedoes in the channel.

BURNING OF ST. CLOUD.

St Cloud must have been wantonly burned by the Parisian shells as no Prussians were there at the time.

The action between the French and Prussians preceding the occupation of Orleans was very severe.

FURNISHING STRASBOURG.

Six hundred pounds sterling has been collected at the gate of the Strasbourg citadel fourteen days since the Prussian occupation of the city. This money will be appropriated to the aid of the German wounded.

A FRENCHY RUMOR.

Tours, 15—evening. The rumors from Orleans are startling. It is asserted that the Prussians there, who are known to have been in great force have surrendered to the French with all their artillery. The French forces are continually increasing. A great sortie was made on the 12th inst. by one hundred and twenty thousand men, strongly supported by cannon and mitrailleuses. No particulars have been received.

AUSTRIA.

Vienna, 15. The Emperor's autograph letter convokes Austrian and Hungarian delegations at Pesth on Monday, Nov. 21.

NAPOLEON'S MEANS.

Paris, 15th—Max Pol has answered Pietri's letter in which he (Pietri) says Napoleon had no money in funds. Pol enumerates the investments aggregating over sixty three millions, in which the Emperor was interested and adds that he (Pol) was in position to know this is true.

Chabrunent 15.

M. KERATRY,

Chief of Police, who left Paris yesterday at 10 a. m. in a balloon, descended the same day at Bar-le-Duc, having escaped the pursuit of the enemy. He was slightly wounded in the leg and head by the sudden fall of the balloon.

A BATTLE AT BAGNEUX.

On the 13th inst. a fight took place at Bagneux and Chatillon, whence the enemy was dislodged with considerable losses. The Mobiles of the departments of Cote D'Or and Aube behaved handsomely. Gen. Dampierre was killed at the head of his command. The Prussian batteries were dismounted. At dusk our troops withdrew to their lines in admirable order. According to a preconcerted plan the sailors in Fort de Montrocy done well in covering the retreat. The firing from forts de Montrouge and De Vanves was most effective. The Chateau St. Cloud was destroyed by fire.

Paris is more patriotic and determined than ever.

There is much impatience in Paris at the inaction of the Prussians. The Parisians desire above all things to be attacked, and as there is no immediate prospect of this, the French are preparing to make a formidable attack on the besiegers.

SKIRMISH AT LAFORTE.

Tours, Oct. 15. The following is official: The French made a strong reconnoissance to Laforte a few days since. The Prussians were encamped and after a brief conflict were beaten off.

A Prussian camp has been established at Boudilion.

Garibaldi has arrived at Beauncon.

GEN. BOURBAKI

has been appointed to the command near Orleans and has gone forward to that post. Neufbreisach is constantly bombarded. The garrison answers vigorously.

ESCAPE OF BAZAINE FROM METZ.

Tours, Oct. 15. Bazaine has escaped from Metz and is marching with his full force to the relief of Verdun.

London, Oct. 15—evening. A special to the N. Y. World says: The Standard has a dispatch from Boulogne giving news of a victory by Bazaine at Metz.

SPAIN.

THE SPANISH CROWN.

London, Oct. 15. A telegram is given to the public to-da at the Lombard street news room, stating that Prince Amadeus has consented to accept the Spanish Crown, and that Victor Emanuel has given his adhesion to the scheme.

—Searsport has erected a soldiers' monument costing one thousand dollars. It is a granite column with marble slabs upon its sides, on which are cut the names of thirty-seven citizens of Searsport, who fell in the war of the late rebellion. It was fraited and cut by Wilson Colcord, of granite taken from his quarry in Searsport, says the Belfast Age.

—The Portland Argus says that Lancaster Hall, in Portland, was slightly damaged by fire, Thursday evening, to the amount of about $1200. Gardner Jordin, carpet dealer, and Atwood Bros., silver platers, had their stocks considerably damaged.

—The Biddeford Democrat says that Mr. O. J. Wedgewood of Biddeford, lost a valuable horse at Newfield last week. The horse was hired by a party to go to that place, when upon their arrival, from some cause, the horse suddenly dropped dead.

—The Biddeford Democrat says that James C. Chadbourne, of North Waterboro', has in his orchard, an apple tree of the Rhode Island greening species, which is forty-five years old, and from which the present season, he has gathered thirteen heaped barrels of fruit.

—Eels come up Portland in water pipes, all the way from Sebago.

—The Argus says that as a young man named Benj. Merrill, clerk in the shoe store of J. E. Merrill of Portland, was lowering himself upon an elevator, at the rear of J. E. Palmer's store, the rope holding it parted, and precipitated him some fifteen feet to the ground. He struck on his hands and head, fracturing both wrists and cutting a severe gash in his head.

—The American says that the North Ellsworth Farmers' Club held their first exhibition at Tyler's Hall the 27th and 28th ult. and it was judged a success.

—The Ellsworth American says that the twelfth annual exhibition of the H. A. S. opened Wednesday. The first two days the Hall containing the produce, etc., was quite well filled; but, on the third and last day, while about six hundred were upon the Park, the hall remained almost unvisited. The display of produce, etc., evinces, on the part of a few, a deep interest in the material growth and progress of Hancock County.

—The Gardiner Journal editor noticed on board the schooner Julia Baker, loaded with granite, one stone which they told was worth $2000. This is disposing of raw material to good purpose. Messrs. Bodwell and Wilson are working the Hallowell quarries very efficiently.

—At the Bowdoin Regatta on the Androscoggin at Brunswick, the six-oared race was won by the "West End" of Portland, time, (3 miles) 20 20; the wherry race was won by E. E. Whitney of Farmington, time (one mile) 8.22; the single-shell by W. R. Shaw of Bath, (2 miles) in 17.48; the double-shell race (2 miles) by the "How" in 14.36.

—We learn from the Journal that a new locomotive, "Francis Cobb," built for the Knox & Lincoln railroad, came to Lewiston on a trial trip Thursday, and took the noon train on the A. R. R. to Brunswick and back. It is a powerful machine, weighing twenty-four tons, and finished in splendid style. It was built by the Manchester Locomotive works.

DEDICATION OF A MASONIC HALL

On Friday afternoon the new Hall in Orono, occupied by Mechanics' Lodge, F. & A. M., was dedicated by the Grand Master, assisted by R. W. David Bugbee as D. G. M., L. Bradford as S. G., W. A. B. Morston as J. G. W., Chas. I. Collamore as Grand Marshal, and other members of the fraternity from Bangor who were present.

At half past two o'clock the Knights Commandery of this city, accompanied by the Bangor Band, escorted Rising Star and St. Andrew's Lodges of this city to the Depot of the E. & N. A. Railway, where they took the cars for Orono. They arrived there at three o'clock, and were met at Mechanic's Lodge, Wor. H. C. Powers, and accompanied by members of Star in the East Lodge of Oldtown, who came down in the train. The various organizations formed in procession under the command of Major John W. Atwell, Chief Marshal, and marched through the principal streets of the village to a pavilion erected for them by the brethren of Orono. Here they found tables spread for their accommodations, and well with everything in the way of eatables that could be desired by hungry men. After repeated assaults upon the viands which materially affecting the supply, the procession was reformed and marched to the Hall where quite a large crowd had already gathered. The Dedicatory services were performed, after which an hour or two was spent in social intercourse, listening to the music of the band, dancing in Wilson's Hall, and singing good time generally. At ten the Bangor Masons took their leave well satisfied with the afternoon and its enjoyments.

We can hardly have the subject matter complimenting the ladies of Orono for the excellence of the supper which we understand was prepared by them, and also for the efforts to make the affair a success. The choir which furnished the music for the affair, are also deserving of great praise.

The fraternity have a very fine hall, commodious, convenient, and tastily arranged, and we trust a future of usefulness is in store for them.

BANGOR PRODUCE MARKET.

SATURDAY, Oct. 15th, 1870.

The following report is obtained by the regular observation on the market, and the quotations are the prices paid for produce from the country teams this day, or about the average for the week past:

HAY—The quantity brought to market this week has not been as great as usual, and the best qualities of loose have sold at from $20 to $22, and $23 per ton, and the inferior grades have sold at from $17 to $18 and $19.

STRAW—The bulk of loose straw has sold at from $5 to $10 per ton.

OATS are selling on our market at about 60 cents per bushel, though occasionally a load of extra heavy ones sell a trifle higher.

BARLEY is now worth 65 cents per bushel, or a nice clean article sells at that price.

BEANS—Yellow eyes are now selling from $2.25 to $2.30 per bushel, but are not brought to market just now in any great quantity. Extra hand picked pea beans are worth from $2.50 to $2.75.

BUTTER—There came plenty of fair and common lots of lump butter brought to market, which we should quote at about 40 cents per pound, but a nice article of lump is scarce, and would sell at 42 to 45 cents. For solid butter there is not much demand yet but we should quote the range of price from 30 to 35 cents, for a good sweet article.

POTATOES are coming to market quite freely, and sold to-day at from 62 to 68 and 65 cents per bushel, with an occasional load of extra ones selling a little higher.

CHICKENS sell at from 15 to 18 cents per pound, according to size and quality.

ROUND HOGS sell at from 12 to 13 cents per pound.

WOOD—The best quality of seasoned hardwood is worth from $7.00 to $7.50 per cord, and good dry soft is worth from $4.00 to $5.00.

"A BIRD'S NEST"

BY ROBINSON PENDL

Our joy shall fly from way
Two little brown wings I ha
Have chosen to fashion their dwelling
And utter their loving words.
All day they are going and coming
On errands frequent and fleet
All unfolding over and over,
"Sweetest sweet, sweet oh sweet!

Their nooks are changeful and shifting
Their eyes are like living gems
And all day long they are busy
Gathering straws and twigs
Lint, and feathers and grasses
And half forgetting to eat,
Never ceasing to whistle,
"Sweetest, sweet, sweet oh sweet!

I scatter crumbs on the door step,
And dip them some flossy threads
They fearlessly gather my bounty,
And turn my shoulder graceful heads
And chatter and dance on I flutter,
And scrape with their dainty feet,
Falling no more just over
"Sweetest sweet sweet, oh sweet!

What if the sky is clouded?
What if the rain comes down?
They are all dressed to meet it
In wise proofs of their
They never mope or languish,
Nor murmur at storm or heat
It is my whistle or the weather
"Sweetest sweet, sweet oh sweet!

Always merry and busy,
Dear little brown wren bird!
Teach me the happy magic
Hid in those soft words
Which always in the
So long as you repeat
Over it over and over
"Sweetest sweet sweet, oh sweet!

THE TRUE DOCTRINE OF DIVINE SOVEREIGNTY

SERMON

BY REV. NEWARD BEECHER

(Concluded)

On the other hand turning from these oblique and perplexing views, consider the following truths

I God acts from his own uncounseled will as he has a right to do, simply because he is so wise, and so perfect in it that no counsel can add to his knowledge! There is no other resource left What do you think of Charles Darwin going to Patagonia where he says that the miserable creatures in the pelting snow and rain came out to him stripping naked in their canoes, the women nursing their babies, with the snow melting and running down their green colored bodies and speaking a language that seemed more like the chattering of monkeys and baboons than like the voice of human beings? Now suppose Darwin had called about him the best of these natives to give him counsel in natural science? Suppose he had asked their counsel in respect to astronomy? It is more like by that if he had asked their counsel in respect to dirt, they would have instructed him! Suppose it had been navigation, history, poetry, refinement, delicacy, family government, personal purity? Why, there was more thought in his little finger than in the whole nation! and whole generations of them Rake every spark of intelligence out of these beings, and the combined intelligence of the whole of them would not amount to the intelligence of one large, rational, Christian man! And now, standing in the midst of such creatures, would it be possible for him to act toward them from considerations other than from those which were drawn from himself? If he should be asked, "Did you act in counsel with their chiefs?" he would say, "I could not! I saw what was right myself, and did it!" "Did you take any instruction from their taste?" "They had none! I had to fall back on my own taste!"

You perceive that a man standing among dwarfs of his own species is thrown into the same line of analogy, though infinitely beneath the fact in which God stands. For he is so supremely great in every direction, and so perfect in every element that there is no self counsel of the highest beings in our species, they would darken wisdom by words without understanding. And by his very being and superiority he must do that which his own mind dictates to him

Suppose there should be a Democratic outbreak some day in Nature, and all things that had a reflected light should undertake to bring down the crowned sun, and join the Democratic too? Suppose there should go up from every gleaming, laughing, dashing rivulet, and from every white and yellow blossomed flower, from every vine, from every mountain side, from houses and cities and wide-extended plains, from all the varied and beauteous things of earth—a protest to the sun saying Thou shalt not longer shine uncounseled. Take counsel of us, and we will send our light up and fill the, that thou mayest see! But all the light ripples in the morning, or ramparts the east all the light that makes the hills and mountains glorious and fills the whole plain, dripping color at every step through all its intricacies—all that light poured from the sun and traveled long leaving whence it came, stores abundant, infinite inexhaustible And there is nothing that could go up from the bosom of sea or land that would be anything but giving back what the sun shed down long ago! As the bird sheds its feathers and needs no molt longer so the sun lapses light, and can get no good from receiving it back And what is there in God's realm—in Heaven above or in earth beneath—what has there been from eternity, of what shall there be to eternity, that did not come from the overflowing power and grace and grandeur and beauty of God himself? And shall you on bended knee to give that back to him, as if to add something to him? Can that have your being and life from him—what can you add to him to make him greater or stronger or better? Listen to what is said in the tenth chapter of Isaiah

"He slaughered his flock like a shepherd"

How exquisitely God always depicts himself! See the contrast

He shall feed his flock like a shepherd, he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom and shall gently lead those that are with young Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with a span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance? Who hath directed the spirit of the Lord or being his counselor, hath taught him? With whom took he counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him in the path of judgment, and taught him knowledge and shewed to him the way of understanding? Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance, behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn, nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offering All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing and vanity

How can it be other than that God shall administer according to the counsels of his own will? and what other resources has he, without going down from the best to the worst?

II Especially because God from his own intrinsic goodness, from the power, depth, variety and beauty of every emotion of his being is capable of deriving impulses and motives, transcendently higher and better than any which his creatures could inspire, if they had the liberty of counseling with him And is he to be chained to be an absolute sovereign? Unquestionably! What if you would ask God to love things beautiful, and should spread out before him the landscape, and all the rare things that are known in Nature, and then should lead him to whatever has been done by the best, the holiest, the truest artists, whether of grandeur, or grace, or beauty—would those things, held up before God, be to him what they are to us? Would he not say? Why should I look upon these things, which are all of my own making? I made the maker I am the artist's artist, and his thoughts are second hand, I made the earth in its fullness and yet there is in my thought of beauty that which the earth has never expressed In my own soul, and back of any thing that has yet been created, there is infinity of beauty in conception Who, then, shall teach God by rendering him anything, since he is himself so rich and full, and is the cause of that which you render to him?

What if all the men who have been wronged on earth should say "If God would do just, surely he would learn of us what justice demands?" Would he not say "I will not hear you I will act from my own sense of what is right?" And would that be to despise the evilly treated? Is there a man that would be righted who knows how to right himself as well as God knows how to right him? The crying of the prisoner, the impudence of the bond-slave, the weariness of the exile, all the multiplied wrongs that in various ways have been heaped and heaped on men, as the overrolling sea heaps its waves on the sand—has God not seen these things and known them? and shall he learn of men what justice requires? Shall he take his measures of right from our poor laws, or from that law of eternal rectitude which unclouedly abides in his own soul? Shall he derive counsel from himself, or from the suffering? If he takes counsel of others, he will limit his conceptions and subtract from them, but if he takes counsel of himself, his conception will be boundless And though the world has ground and travelled in pain until now, nothing less escaped his notice.'

Brethren, when I shut my eyes to everything but the world, and see it drive across the ocean of time like a ship helplessly rolling and pitching, I am an infidel. It is only when I look above the ship, to the stars that may be hidden, but are never rubbed out by storms, it is only when I look at God himself, that, I am instructed in his sagacity And of God's ways of justice may not be like man's, and may not be measured or bounded by our horizon But God is just, and, though the world has been rolling its miseries over the ages down to our day, justice has been going out on its march We do not yet see what the fruits of justice have been, but we shall see him It will be plain in the world that God has been taking counsel, not of man, not of prisoners, not of wronger or wronged, but of himself and himself alone, with better wisdom, with truer justice, with nobler humanity, that he and by shall blossom and shall be sweeter for the long ages that it has taken to ripen this fruit

What if all mothers and all lovers should desire to counsel and teach God what pity and love at such a man needs? This is just what we do brethren But we say, Oh that I know where to find him" I go forward, in my grief, and he is not there, I go backward, and find him not, I go to the right, but it is empty, I go to the left, and all is darkness, and I weep out the night with my anguish and say, "Oh, that I knew where to find him, that I might pour out my hearts suffering to him For every sufferer thinks that he has struck a new chord of experience, and that no man has plumbed so low a depth of suffering before And yet every sufferer travels the beat on paved the great macadamized road that has already been traveled by tens of thousands There is nothing new or strange about it And God knows perfectly the whole tore of suffering He knows every privation of it He knows it at a glance of his eye, and his ear is ever open to catch the sounds which go up from it And what could you tell God of your case that he does not know? What could you do to make your case better understood by him? If God were deaf, or indifferent you might feel solicitude, but if he is the very nerve of being, if his ear is always open, if his heart is sensitive to every want of the universe, if not one falls unnoticed by him, if he has numbered and registered every hair of your head, do you suppose you need to instruct him, counsel with him, or tell him what love sorrow means? It must needs be that God shall take counsel of himself He is supreme and will be acts he says I act from my own self" When we say that we act from our own self we mean just the reverse from this. Charles Darwin going to Patagonia where he says that the miserable creatures in the pelting snow and rain came out to him stripping naked in their canoes, the women nursing their babies, with the snow melting and running down their green colored bodies and speaking a language that seemed more like the chattering of monkeys and baboons than like the voice of human beings? What if you would ask God to love things beautiful, and should spread out before him the landscape, and all the rare things that are known in Nature, and then should lead him to whatever has been done by the best, the holiest, the truest artists, whether of grandeur, or grace, or beauty—would those things, held up before God, be to him what they are to us? Would he not say? Why should I look upon these things, which are all of my own making? I made the maker I am the artist's artist, and his thoughts are second hand, I made the earth in its fullness and yet there is in my thought of beauty that which the earth has never expressed In my own soul, and back of any thing that has yet been created, there is infinity of beauty in conception' Who, then, shall teach God by rendering him anything, since he is himself so rich and full, and is the cause of that which you render to him?

What if all the men who have been wronged on earth should say "If God would do just, surely he would learn of us what justice demands?" Would he not say "I will not hear you I will act from my own sense of what is right?" And would that be to despise the evilly treated? Is there a man that would be righted who knows how to right himself as well as God knows how to right him? The crying of the prisoner, the impudence of the bond-slave, the weariness of the exile, all the multiplied wrongs that in various ways have been heaped and heaped on men, as the overrolling sea heaps its waves on the sand—has God not seen these things and known them? and shall he learn of men what justice requires? Shall he take his measures of right from our poor laws, or from that law of eternal rectitude which unclouedly abides in his own soul? Shall he derive counsel from himself, or from the suffering? If he takes counsel of others, he will limit his conceptions and subtract from them, but if he takes counsel of himself, his conception will be boundless And though the world has ground and travelled in pain until now, nothing less escaped his notice.'

Brethren, when I shut my eyes to everything but the world, and see it drive across the ocean of time like a ship helplessly rolling

There is hope for a man if he will only lean on God; because God is sovereign, and will do as he pleases; and will for his own sake do the things that are needed There is no mercy so great that God will not be equal to it There is no grace that would surprise him There is no sin so great as to strike him with a deeper sense of wickedness than that which he has already And he has been from age to age forgiving, and seeking reasons to forgive; conferring blessings, and seeking new channels in which to confer greater blessings. And it seems to me that the more we think of God, and go down through the ages of the world in our thoughts, the more we see him to be one that should draw the needy and wicked and guilty and corrupt to the bosom of his all healing love There we are safe, there we are strong, there, where no touch God; we are for the first time men—Below that we are beasts, animals, physical creatures When we reach to touch him, we begin to breathe our native air, and to feel the true inspirations of our being In God we live and move and have our being Are there any, who are trying to live a virtuous life? God is for you, and if he is for you who can be against you? Are there any that fear the uncertainties of wickedness, the charms of evil, or the temptations of the Devil? Ah, is there anything under the canopy that is as great as He that sits on the circle of it? And if God is your friend, who can be your enemy? Trust in the Lord, and do good, and verily thou shalt be fed! Are there any that have had some faint and feeble faith, and have you feared that your conception of God was exaggerated, and drew back from it? You cannot form too high a notion of him, or place too much confidence in him You may gather together all the representations of Nature, in all its varied forms, and fashion to yourself a being the most exalted and glorious that you can conceive of, and he towers above your best ideal God is as much superior to anything that you can think of as the sun is brighter and more powerful than the taper, that you light for your evening meal

You cannot think too well of God You cannot trust him too implicitly Trust him Love him, In your sin and wickedness go to him! Living, hold on to him, and dying—it may be in the forest, where only the bark of the squirrel or the chirp of birds shall comfort you ear, it may be on the vessel, where seasick and weary, you are tossed on the ocean it may be in the dungeon, loathsome and dark, we may be in the National Jail in Washington, go out of it as an arrow shot from a gun—but dying, wherever you are and when or at the event takes place, look to God, and let your last breath here in the body be, as it were, a waiting influence to carry you to his bosom there And, you soul once with God, shall see him as he is, and be satisfied Then, first! oh, my soul, shalt thou know what is satisfaction Here something is always needed, but when I behold my God I shall be satisfied, and I shall be like him

ONE OF THE GREATEST CURES ON RECORD!

BANGOR Sept 28 1870

This is to certify that I have been sick for twenty years with the ulcer piles, as the physicians have told me I have been treated in New York and Bangor by a large number of Physicians, and found no relief until I called on Mrs Manchester a short time ago She told me very readily what the trouble was—that I had abscesses and tumors I have taken her medicines, and have had proof that what she told me was perfectly correct If any one doubts this, let them call on me personally and I will give them correct information in regard to my case I want the sick as fortunate to go to Clairvoyant MRS MANCHESTER and not be discouraged by ignorant and faithless people but have faith of your own, and you will get relief
MRS HENRIETTA PEABODY,

ORLAND Oct 9th 1870

Ten years ago I commenced to have a cancer on my breast. I consulted several physicians in Bangor and they told me there was no help for me unless I had it taken off, it then was the size of an egg. I would not consent to have it taken off, but suffered intensely with pain from it for a year At the end of that time I saw Mrs Manchester's advertisement in the Portland Transcript, and was induced to go to her which I did, in Portland, and at that time the cancer was as large as a coffee cup She examined my case and told me she could cure the cancer I commenced taking her medicine and using outward applications, and in three months the lump was one third smaller and in six months it was no signs of it unless by pressing on it I could not feel it. I took her treatment twelve months and was entirely cured, and have no signs of a cancer, or any other tumors and my health is as well as my friends, that if I had never seen Mrs Manchester I should have been in my grave long before this I can never be thankful enough to her for her skill and kindness and my prayer is that she may live to benefit the sick and suffering, and also to call on her and be cured. I put it off till you made all and then you also did not help you, as she does not presume to take the dead
